EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Katrina is a US CPA from Rhode Island and has spent the last decade living & working abroad in EMEA. She holds dual degrees in Accounting & Applied Mathematics from the University of Rhode Island. Katrina started her career with PwC in Boston in the audit practice focused on technology and aerospace & defense companies.

Katrina spent most of her career with PwC in Frankfurt working in the capital markets & accounting advisory team, where she worked on taking European companies public in the US and leading GAAP conversion projects. She also spent 2 years within their Dubai team, also within the capital markets team, and led UK-facing capital markets projects.

Katrina spent 3 years in private equity for Slate Asset Management, a Toronto-based real estate asset management company, where she built a European finance function from scratch across 5 funds with entities throughout Europe. She now works independently as a cross-border accounting expert - helping European companies go public in the US, US companies to acquire European companies with post-acquisition accounting support, and leading GAAP conversions across the two continents. She brings expertise in cross-border accounting that spans industries, having advised clients across technology, biotech, manufacturing, consumer goods, and oil & gas.
